“ Being a friend Austin made during his time in SC, I unfortunately learned of his passing far later than I would've liked. Austin started at my high school during the end of my junior year. I was the weird girl that carried her guitar everywhere and we just clicked. I could always count on him and he could always count on me. Unfortunately, you grow up and start your own families and drift apart. But you never stop caring for the friends you truly loved. And I do believe Austin and I had that type of deep friendship. I have missed his friendship since he moved, and I will continue to miss it now that he has passed. But I will always cherish the afternoons and evenings we spent together jamming on our acoustic guitars and just being total weirdos.
